PLANTING INSTRUCTIONS for DORMANT ROSES

Anyone can grow roses. There have been so many instructions on the planting and care of roses that many amateurs hesitate to begin a rose garden. The important things in choosing your location are good drainage, at least half a day of full sun, and protection from very strong winds.

It is advisable to spade the bed in advance to a depth of at least 18 inches. Well rotted cow manure is very good for spading in at this time, or this may be applied away from the roots when planting. This is the best winter mulching fertilizer.

When you receive your dormant roses, completely unwrap them and immerse in a bucket of water until planted. If you cannot plant immediately, bury them in moist soil for a few days. But plant them as soon as possible.

Roses should be planted 2 to 3 feet apart. Dig a large enough hole so the roots spread out completely. Prune any broken roots. A cone of dirt in the center of the hole is very important, so the roots fit down naturally over it. The bud union, from where the branches start, should be just below ground level. It is best to run water in the hole as you fill in the dirt. There MUST NOT be any air pockets left around the roots or the rose will die. Water again several days later so the ground will settle firmly.

Roses are susceptible to bugs and diseases. A Dormant Spray should be applied twice in the Winter. A combination spray for bugs and diseases should be used every ten days thru the Summer. Good, reputable, especially prepared rose sprays are available at any nursery supply store.

We highly recommend a soluble fertilizer called "RA-PID-GRO" for Spring and Summer fertilizing. It is high in the elements that roses require and so easy to apply. Mixed with water, pour some around each rose, or spray it on at the same time as the insecticide, as it is also a foliage fertilizer.

"RA-PID-GRO" fertilizer:

1 lb.	$1.25 postage .25c
2 lb.	2.35 postage .30c
5 lb.	4.50 postage .40c
10 lb.	8.75 postage .60c

"It is never too late to plant Roses!"

We have roses for planting every month of the year. Several thousand roses are planted in tar-paper pots during the Winter months, left outside to grow naturally, and then be planted anytime from April to November, after the dormant season is over. It is worthwhile to visit our Nursery in the Summer, choose your roses in bloom, take them home and plant them. Simply dig a hole in well worked ground, set the potted rose in the hole, slit the tar-paper pot, remove it without disturbing the dirt on the roots, fill in more soil, and water. Then feed them "RA-PID-GRO" and watch them thrive!

SHIPPING POTTED ROSES: for Summer planting.

ADD 50¢ EACH to catalog price.

This includes a packing charge. Potted roses are shipped by auto freight or Railway Express, the shipping charges payable on delivery. Each potted rose weighs 12 lbs.
